WHAT HAPPENS WHEN YOU ASK CHATGPT TO BUY YOU A SURPRISE GIFT

BOTH PROMPTS FROM MY VIDEO

What happens when you ask ChatGPT to buy you a surprise gift based on everything it knows about you? It picks one thing you would absolutely love but never buy for yourself, and the craziest part is that it actually has a reason for picking it, based on things you told it months ago. Then it opens its own browser, finds the exact gift and orders it straight to your house, without ever telling you what it is. Here are both prompts from my video.

How to keep it a surprise while it orders

Copy This First: Both Prompts From My Video

Want them both at once? Switch to Work first (Step 1), then paste this and it runs both prompts from the video for you, one after the other:

ALL PROMPTS | COPY & PASTE

Do these in order and show each one under its own short heading:
1) Based on everything you know about me, what's one gift I would absolutely love but never buy for myself? Don't tell me what it is.
2) Go order it for me. Keep it under $50 and don't tell me what it is.

Or go one at a time, like in the video. In a new Work chat, send this:

PROMPT 1 | COPY & PASTE

Based on everything you know about me, what's one gift I would absolutely love but never buy for myself? Don't tell me what it is.

ChatGPT is then going to come up with a gift, and it tells you why it picked it without giving it away. Then stay in the same chat and send this:

PROMPT 2 | COPY & PASTE

Go order it for me. Keep it under $50 and don't tell me what it is.

ChatGPT is then going to open its own browser, find the exact gift and order it straight to your house. Just make sure you don't look at what it's doing.

Step 1: Switch to Work

The first prompt works anywhere, but only Work can actually go and buy the gift, so do both prompts in Work.

- Open ChatGPT on chatgpt.com, the desktop app or your phone.
- Switch to Work. At the top, switch from Chat to Work. On the phone app, pick Work from the dropdown at the top.
- Start a new Work chat. Both prompts have to be in the same chat, so it remembers which gift it picked. If you switch from Chat to Work halfway, that starts a new chat.

> TIP
> Check that Memory is on before you start: Settings > Personalization > Memory. That's what lets it pick a gift based on things you told it months ago. If you've only just started using ChatGPT, tell it three things you love first, then send the prompt.

Step 2: Let It Pick (Without Telling You)

Send the first prompt. ChatGPT goes through everything it knows about you and comes back with its pick, plus the reasons it chose it, written so they don't give the gift away.

This is the fun part. The reasons come from things you've told it, sometimes months ago, so you get to see how well it actually knows you.

HEADS UP

Read the reasons, not the gift. If it slips and names the gift, just say "Pick a different one and keep it a secret this time."

Step 3: Let It Order (and Don't Look)

Stay in the same chat and send the second prompt. ChatGPT opens its own browser in the cloud and goes shopping. Here's what to expect.

- It asks to open a website. By default it asks before it visits a new site. Say yes.
- It asks you to sign in. When it reaches the store's sign-in page, a secure sign-in box pops up. Type your email and password there yourself. ChatGPT never sees them.
- It asks you to confirm the order. Before it pays, it stops and asks you in the chat. Check the price and your address, then confirm without reading the item name. Want to be safe? Have someone else check it for you.
- It's done. It tells you it's ordered and when it should arrive. A few days later, the gift shows up at your door.

HEADS UP

Never type your card number or password into the chat. If the store needs a card, keep one saved in your store account, or take over the browser and type it yourself.

TIP

Some websites block AI shoppers, so ChatGPT might pick a different store than you would. That's fine. It just needs one that ships to you for under $50.

After It Arrives

Open it, then go back to the same chat and send this:

PROMPT 3 | COPY & PASTE

Now tell me why you picked this for me.

It walks you through every reason, now that the surprise is out.

Do it for someone else. Want a gift for your mom, your partner or a friend? Tell ChatGPT about them, or let it use what you've already told it:

PROMPT 4 | COPY & PASTE

Based on everything I've told you about [PERSON], what's one gift they would absolutely love but never buy for themselves? Keep it under [BUDGET] and tell me why you picked it.

Common Mistakes and Quick Fixes

If this happens	Try this
It tells you what the gift is	Say: "Pick a different one and don't tell me what it is, even in your reasons."
It says it doesn't know enough about you	Turn on Memory in Settings > Personalization > Memory, or tell it three things you love and one thing you've wanted for ages.
It asks you what you'd like	Say: "Surprise me. Pick it yourself from what you know about me."
You don't see Work	Work is on paid plans (Plus or Pro). On Free or Go, send the first prompt for the idea, ask for the link, and have a friend order it so it's still a surprise.
It stops at a sign-in page	Sign in yourself in the secure sign-in box. Never paste a password into the chat.
The store blocks it or checkout fails	Say: "Try a different store." Or ask it to let you take over the browser and finish the checkout yourself (look away from the item).
It's over $50	Don't confirm. Say: "That's over $50 with shipping. Pick something under $50 total."
The address is wrong	Don't confirm. Fix your address in your store account, then say "Continue."

Quick Reference: Your Surprise Gift

Step	Do this
Switch	Chat to Work at the top
Pick	Prompt 1 from my video
Order	Prompt 2, in the same chat
Sign in	The secure sign-in box, never the chat
Confirm	Check the price and address, skip the item name
After it arrives	"Now tell me why you picked this for me."
For someone else	The [PERSON] prompt

DO THIS TODAY

Switch to Work, send the first prompt and let it pick. Then send the second one, look away while it shops, and wait for your doorbell.
